

Blaze in Belvidere

Few natural elements evoke as much awe and spectacle as fire can. When a veld fire erupted in the vicinity of Belvidere on Friday, April 26, several motorists along the N2 lagoon road and the road to Brenton pulled over to watch the sheer force of the flames as they seemingly effortlessly devoured everything in their path, the fire's power magnified by the diminished appearance of a helicopter and light aircraft hovering in the smoke above.

Valiant and well-orchestrated efforts by several fire-fighting authorities eventually doused the fire

Houses in Belvidere were dwarfed by the plumes of smoke from the veld fire. (Photo: Penny Foyn.)

To page 4